Newark airport security guard who threatened Obama may be freed

By The Associated Press

NEWARK -- The airport security guard overheard talking about shooting President Obama hopes to be released from jail today.

John Brek, a 55-year-old Linden resident, originally faced a felony charge of making terroristic threats. However, Brek pleaded guilty last Friday to the reduced charge of harassment.

The charge carries a maximum 30-day jail sentence. Brek has been held about that long since his arrest last month.

A Continental Airlines employee reported hearing the 55-year-old say he had "cut a hole in a fence to be able to shoot" Obama. Air Force One had landed at Newark airport.
